Again Move Forward in Caen Area

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 5—(INS)—Armored assault forces of the United States First Army drove into the Breton port of St. Malo today where they battled the Germans for possession of the city, while Yank spearheads dashed westward toward Brittany to within 75 miles west of Brest and southward to within 38 miles of the ports of St. Nazaire and Lorient.

A spokesman at headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced the penetration of St. Malo but said that the port was not yet in American hands.

The general situation in France, where the Nazis were smashed back on all battlefronts and the British again moved forward in the Caen area of Normandy, was termed "very, very satisfactory."

While the Americans pressed multi-pronged assaults west and

BOND SALES GO "OVER TOP" IN ALL SERIES

Workers in Bristol and Bensalem Areas Complete Full Quotas

FOR THE 5TH LOAN

Bristol and Bensalem volunteer workers put the fifth war loan drive "over the top" this week, by gaining their quota in all series of bonds.

"Every quota met is in a sense a beachhead," said Mrs. John Leslie Kileoyne today, "even though the work may seem a far cry from the bloody struggle we watch tensely at a distance."

Mrs. Kileoyne, chairman, in announcing the gaining of the quota of all series in the Bristol-Bensalem area in the fifth loan drive, reminds that "Every bond we buy or sell gives us a place in every landing, every fight in an Allied plane, and a part in every battle that carries our men along their blood-stained road to victory."

"Actually we can never quite earn the sacrifices that those who fight must make for us. But we can keep faith, we can help to give those many tragic deaths their meaning. Our determination to fight and work in every way open to us, helps us to hold our own home-front lines until the time of unconditional surrender. We have a part in building a better world for those who do come back."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

Too Great A Strain

Washington, Aug. 3. THE EFFORT to build Senator Truman up to a point where it will not be painful to contemplate the possibility of his becoming President of the United States is imposing a severe strain upon the columnists, commentators and paid press agents devoted to the noble cause of continuing the Roosevelt regime for at least four more years.

SOME of the more conscientious among them are beginning to bog down and there are clear indications that before long the whole attempt will be abandoned and the sander theory adopted that so far as the great mass of voters are concerned it makes no great difference who runs for second place on a Presidential ticket and the farther he is pushed into the background the better. Certainly, the journalistic gentlemen who have been trying to make Senator Truman out of a man of real Presidential size have found themselves frustrated, no matter which way they turned. From no source have they gotten any real help—least of all from Senator Truman.

THEIR first handicap is that the candidate, who should know himself better than anyone else, very gravely doubts his own qualifications and is obviously aware that he is being terribly overpraised. Another obstacle is Senator Truman's political background, which, personally honest though he is, is concededly shameful. Another is his record in the Senate which is utterly devoid of originality or independence. Still another is the failure of the Truman Committee record to measure up to the extravagant eulogies that have been draped around it. Finally, there is the more or less trivial matter of having kept his wife on the Senate pay roll at $4,500 a year almost from the start of his service.

CONGRESS VS. PRESIDENT

(Doylestown Intelligencer, August 5th)

Ever since Congress refused to help President Roosevelt pack the Supreme Court and to pass his Reorganization Bill, the war has been on.

The first important reprisal on the President's part was his unsuccessful "purge," in which he attempted to upseat some of the Senators at the State elections for the unconvincing reason that he didn't like them.

The titanic wrestling match came to a head last spring when Senator Barkley, the President's "dear Alben" and leading Congressional spokesman, publicly broke with Roosevelt because of the chief executive's attitude toward Congress as expressed in the Tax Bill veto.

Subsequently Barkley and the President have been reconciled, at least on the surface; and the quarrel itself has been put away in moth-balls for the duration of the campaign.

The important fact is not that two leading New Dealers split, but that President Roosevelt had proceeded so far in trying to shackle Congress that one of the most important of his own factional leaders revolted.

Who was right in the argument? Well, few will deny that Barkley got in the last word. The Senator's position was soundly in line both with the Constitution itself and contemporary interpretations.

The truth is that Congress is charged by the Constitution with responsibility for an almost countless number of functions which are popularly assumed to be within Presidential authority.

In some of these, Congress has delegated part of its power to the executive, but this does not alter the Constitutional pattern; nor can it plausibly be argued that Congress has the right to delegate power without possessing the supplementary right to recall or recapture such power.

The mere listing of powers given to Congress by the Constitution is enough to prove Barkley's point.

Congress alone of the branches of government can pass laws and raise money to carry them out. Further, most of the direct limitations over the President are in the hands of Congress; power to pass measures over his veto, power to confirm or reject his appointments, power even to impeach and remove him from office.

In addition, Congress has power to do the following—the quoted passages being in the words used by the Constitution:

- "Provide for the common Defense and general Welfare of the United States."
- "Borrow Money."
- "Regulate Commerce."
- "Establish a uniform Rule of Naturalization and uniform Laws on . . . Bankruptcy."
- "Coin Money."
- Punish counterfeiting."
- "Establish Postoffices."

Miss Anna Flanagan, seated nearby and unprepared for bathing, went into the creek fully clothed. In a few minutes she was able to get Mrs. Wilson to the bank. There Miss Flanagan and Mrs. James Marra, using artificial respiration resuscitated Mrs. Wilson after a short time. The woman was then removed to a lawn nearby for a period of rest before being taken to her home.

When questioned about how and where she sold such an amount, Helen said: "My route, which I cover every week, is a little less than 100 houses. Fifteen people buy bonds, and 60 buy stamps and bonds regularly through me. The others buy every now and then."

"I have been on my vacation for the last week visiting my uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shuttleworth, at Sickerville, N. J. ## Mercury Soars To 100 As Bucks Countians Swelter Bucks Countians literally broiled yesterday when the temperature reached the 100 mark.

The mercury, which rested at 72 at eight o'clock yesterday morning, commenced soaring almost at once, went up eight degrees in an hour to stand at 80 by nine o'clock; six more degrees in the next hour, and four additional degrees, to reach 90 by 11 a. m. By one p. m., it had gained the 96 mark, and at three and four o'clock stood at 100.

The gradual decline commenced at five, the mercury then going down a few degrees hourly.

This morning it had a better start than yesterday, being at 78 at the hour of eight. Percentage of relative humidity for the 24-hour period ending at eight this morning was 91.

Men, women and children took advantage of every possible bathing facility yesterday, filling the favorite spots along Silver Lake, the Delaware and Neshaminy.

Most of the United States sweltered today in one of the most widespread and protracted heat waves on record with temperatures recorded yesterday that ranged as high as 117.

New York City chalked up its hottest day of the year and its warmest Aug. 4th on record when the mercury hit 96.3 at 4.15 p. m. Continued hot and muggy weather was forecast for today with possibly new record heats in sight. Scattered thundershowers promised but scant relief later in the day.

A drought in West Virginia was said by agriculture officials to be in a critical stage, and finally, Ohio, experienced its 41st day without rain.

The Pittsburgh district sweltered under 94-degree heat yesterday and the weatherman predicted it would get "warmer" today.

BEST FIGHTING MAN

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery warned before the invasion of Europe that the Germans would be hard to dislodge. Put Nazi soldiers in a territory and let them remain long enough and it "takes a bit of doing to get them off," were his words.

The Germans had been in France four years, certainly long enough to qualify for the toughness the British commander credited them with. Yet American soldiers, mostly classified as green troops, ousted them from a sizeable chunk of territory in less than two months' time.

So-called green divisions burst through some of the strongest fortifications on the beachhead. It was the first time they had hit anything remotely resembling the German fortifications, but the doughboys went through. These gains were made, it must be remembered, against troops which were seasoned in battle, having served in France, Poland, Italy and Russia. Even American commanders, who had profound faith in the fighting ability of their troops, were impressed by their accomplishments.

Results being obtained in France prove the basic training of American soldiers is sound. Months of training no longer are thought of as unnecessary days of grind and trouble. Drills, rehearsals, maneuvers, marches—once thought to be the whims of hard-boiled officers—are paying dividends in France and elsewhere.

There is general agreement that the American soldier, odds being equal, is the best fighting man the world has ever known.

RED VENGEANCE

The threat to the center of the German line at Warsaw has revived discussion of the possibilities of Russian vengeance in hastening the collapse of the German people.

The Reds have already served notice that they will bring the military commanders responsible for atrocities on the Russian people to trial at the scene of their depravity. The Russian advance and the German fear of the Russians undoubtedly has played a part in events inside Germany.

The theory is that when the German people face a prospect of Red vengeance, they will pay any price to save their skins. It is a respected theory. It may become the dominating element in the final phase of the war on Germany. If the extermination of the Prussian junkers is desired as a guaranty of peace, the Red army may have a job, despite Stalin's declaration that he does not wish to wipe Germany out entirely.

The British have the motive, the French have the motive but not the power, the Americans have a little motive but much power to lay the lash on a beaten Germany. Only Russia has all the elements necessary to an effective invasion in kind.

Apparently there are no disagreements between Allies and neutral countries which a few more victories in France can not settle.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

standing statesman, these things all attest to the fact that Senator Truman is a rather lightweight politician who has always followed his local party bosses, stuck close by the Administration and never found himself in conflict with the White House wishes. If he had not been that kind of a man in Missouri Tom Pendergast, the criminally indicted and convicted Kansas City boss, would never have made him Senator and if he had not been that kind of a Senator he would not have been chairman of the Truman Committee and certainly Mr. Roosevelt would not have made him his running mate.

CONCERNING Mr. Truman personally, it can be said that he is a man of impeccable character whose consciousness of his own limitations made him genuinely reluctant to become a candidate for the Vice-Presidential nomination and who did so only when the orders came to him from the politicians he recognizes as bosses. The news magazine, Time, described him as almost in a panic when he realized he was going to be named. With tears in his eyes, it said, he protested his unfitness for the Presidential office to which he easily may succeed should Mr. Roosevelt be re-elected. As to his background, the record shows that after his little haberdashery business went broke, Pendergast gave him his first small political job; that later, Pendergast handpicked him for the Senate; that after Pendergast had been exposed as a criminal corruptor, Mr. Truman made an impassioned defense of him in the Senate.

AN ATTEMPT is now being made to wipe all this out by superlative praise of the Truman Committee, which, it is claimed, saved vast sums of money and performed great services. No impartial review sustains this contention, though it is the only one which gave the Truman nomination the least degree of reasonableness. The truth is that while the committee made some serviceable criticisms of the war management, offered some sound suggestions and did some good work, the criticisms had all been made before and the suggestions were of things, such as the single-headed production board, which had become inevitable. The significant thing is that only in direct did the committee ever attack the slightest blame to the President, who was obviously the man responsible. It never directly declared that he personally had erred in any direction on any occasion. On the contrary, Mr. Truman, personally, went so far out of his way to eulogize the Roosevelt management as to bring a protest from the minority members. The basic fact is that the Truman Committee from the start always had White House support and nothing it ever said or did was really unacceptable to Mr. Roosevelt.

that the Senator put—and has kept—Mrs. Truman on the public pay roll. Always when such things are disclosed the claim is that the payroll relative is so efficient as to be indispensable. Perhaps that is true of Mrs. Truman. Nevertheless, the fact remains that first-grade Senators do not do that kind of thing. In former times there used to be sure and deep public resentment toward this form of nepotism. But the way in which the Roosevelt family, for twelve years past, has capitalized its White House occupancy appears to have blunted popular sensitiveness on this subject. However, to many, it still seems an exhibition of bad taste and a proof of low standards. Adding it to the other Truman impediments makes it easy to understand why the Truman build-up is meeting with so little success—why the effort to picture, as equal to the greatest administrative job in the world, a man whose chief administrative experience was in conducting an unsuccessful haberdashery—is not going well.

DISCONCERTING

PORTLAND, Ore. (INS)—A mild-mannered corporal who cuffs army officers around and makes them like it took time off in Portland to demonstrate the war-time art of mayhem and quick death. The corporal, James F. Twohy, Jr., is an instructor in judo stationed in Alaska. But he learned his methods as a policeman in the international settlement at Shanghai before America's entry into the war. Demonstrating his art, Twohy gently wrapped his right arm around a reporter's neck, with his wrist bones squeezing right below the Adam's Apple. That shuts off the wind. The reporter didn't yelp because he couldn't.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

©1943 WITTE, BROWN &amp; CO. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE

CHAPTER ONE
ELLERY QUEEN stood knee-deep in luggage on the Wrightsville station platform and thought: This makes me an admiral, Admiral Columbus.

The station was a squat affair of black-red brick. On a rusty hand truck under the eaves two small boys in torn blue overalls swung their dirty legs and chewed gum in unison, staring at him without expression.

Cramped two-story frame house, and little stoop-shouldered shop with a cracker-barrel look huddled to one side of the tracks—the city side, for up a steep street paved with square cobblestones Mr. Queen could see taller structures beyond.

To the other side of the station there were merely a garage, an extroverted labeled PHIL'S DINER, and a smithy with a neon sign.

Country looks good, by Jake, murmurs Mr. Queen enthusiastically. Green and yellow. Straw colors. And sky of blue and clouds of white—bluer blue and whiter white than he recalled ever having seen before.

City—country; and here they meet, where Wrightsville station flings the twentieth century into the astonished face of the land.

Yes, sir, my boy. You've found it. The Morris Hotel, Upham House, and the Kelton among them could not offer the stranger at their desks one pitiful room. Room times had hit Wrightsville two jumps ahead of Mr. Queen. The last room at the Hollis was filched from under his nose by a portly man with "defense industry" written all over him.

Undiscouraged, Mr. Queen checked his bags at the Hollis, ate a leisurely lunch in the Coffee Shoppe, and read a copy of the Wrightsville Record—Frank Lloyd, Publisher and Editor.

He memorized as many of the names mentioned in the Record as seemed to have local prominence, bought a Wrightsville street map from Mark Doodie's son Grover at the lobby cigar stand, then struck out across the red-cobbled Square toward the hot sun.

At the horse trough in the center of the Square, Mr. Queen paused to admire Founder Wright. Founder Wright had once been a bronze, but he now looked mossy, and the stone trough on which he stood had obviously been unused for years. Words on a plaque said that Jereed Wright had founded Wrightsville when it was an abandoned Indian site, in 1701. The chaste windows of the Wrightsville National Bank, John E. Wright, Pres., smiled at Mr. Queen from across the Square, and Mr. Queen smiled back: O Pioneer!

Then he circled the Square (which was round), peered into Sol Gowdy's Men's Shop, the Ben Ton Department Store, Dunc MacLeary's Fine Liquors, and William Ketchum—Insurance; examined the three gilded balls above the shop of J. P. Simpson, the jardiniere of green and red liquid in the window of the High Village Pharmacy, Myrna Garback, Prop., and turned to survey the thoroughfares which radiated like spokes from the hub of the Square.

One spoke was a broad avenue: the redbrick Town Hall, the Carnegie Library, a glimpse of park, tall praying trees, and beyond, a cluster of white new WPA-looking buildings. Another spoke was a street lined with stores and full of women in house dresses and men in work clothes. Consulting his street map, Mr. Queen ascertained that this avenue of commerce was Lower Main; so he made for it.

Here he found the Record office; he peered in and saw the big press being shined up by old Phinny Baker after the morning's run. He scouted up Lower Main, poking his nose into the crowded five-and-dime, past the new Post Office building, past the Bijou Theater, past J. C. Pettigrew's real-estate office; and he went into Al Brown's Ice Cream Parlor and had a New York College Ice and listened to the chatter of lanned boys and red-checked girls of high-school age. He heard Saturday night "dates" being arranged right and left—for Danced in the Grove, which he gathered was at Wrightsville Junction, some miles down the line, admission would not smile; the boys, said Sidney Gatch, just yelled "Yahhhh" and took it out on Mueller's Feed Store three doors up the block.

Two-thirty. No room, eh? Walking rapidly, he made his way back to Lower Main and neither paused nor pried until he reached the shop marked J. C. PETTIGREW, REAL ESTATE.

And the woolen mill had taken on extra help—army orders.

"Room times, brother! No wonder you couldn't get a room. I've got an uncle from St. Paul and a cousin from Pittsburgh doubling up with me and Betsy right now!"

Soon after his arrival, Mr. Queen started to get acquainted with the town.

Commerce lunch at Upham House, and he was full of fried chicken. Mr. Queen spoke him up. "My name," and the caller, "is Smith. I've just landed in Wrightsville, and I'm looking for a small furnished house to rent on a month-to-month basis."

"Glad to know you, Mr. Smith," grinned J. C., struggling into his gabardine office jacket. "My, it's warm! Furnished house, hey? I can see you're a stranger. No furnished houses in Wrightsville, Mr. Smith."

HEISLER'S STEAL OF HOME WINS GAME FOR FLEETWINGS

Airplane Builders Defeat Rohm & Haas By One Run

FINAL SCORE IS 9 TO 8

Steal Was Made in Seventh With Two Out; Scored One

Lonny Heisler's clean steal of home in the seventh inning gave the Fleetwings team a 9-8 triumph over Rohm & Haas last evening on the Bristol high school field.

Heisler's steal came with two out and after Dugan had batted in the tying run with a hit. The hit scored Lodge and advanced Heisler to third.

Prior to the last half of the inning, the chemical mixers had gone ahead by scoring a pair of tallies on a triple by Tony Piazza. Piazza's three-bagger came with Elmer and Nociti on base. Mitchell, who had two hits to his credit, left Piazza stranded on third.

Cy Bachman did the hurling for the Airrows while Paul Cervellero and Joe Antonelli did the hill work for the chemical mixers. The Maple Beach team had a big inning in the third when six runs scored the plate on a walk, two singles, a fielder's choice, an error, and a three-bagger from the bat of Joe Elmer.

Bachman also led his team in batting with a double and a pair of singles in three trips to the plate. Jack Mitchell and Barney Ludwig both had two out of four.

The two teams will meet again on the high school field Monday evening.

Rain of This Week Aided The Tomatoes

for what is known as dry rot, a fungus disease brought about by continued hot and dry weather.

The rain of this week helped conditions considerably however.

Under normal conditions, said Mr. Greenawalt, the harvest of can house tomatoes would be in full swing next week. He, however, has hopes for tomatoes maturing later in the season. Some of the later varieties of tomatoes are developing their second and third sets of blossoms.

Bucks county's tomato production per acre is about seven tons, and as yet it is impossible to determine the extent for the yield for this season.

The tomato acreage in the county last year was about 4,000, and this year it is about the same, perhaps slightly less. Among the more extensive growers in the county are Herman Heston, Newtown township, who has about 50 acres planted with tomatoes; Olin Mastin, Quakertown, who also has about 50 acres, and the Vasey brothers, of near Carlisle, who during the spring set out about 45 acres of plants.

The heaviest concentration for tomato growing in the county is in Lower Makefield township, which produces about one-sixth the county's supply of can house tomatoes.

Concerning the help required for tomato picking, Mr. Greenawalt said the truckers are in fairly good shape because there has been a greater migration of transient labor.

The boys' work camp at George School, where Stephenson Fletcher is the camp director, has 195 boys available for general farm work. The boys will be available for farm work until September 2. It is expected another camp will be established at Camp Onas, where Mrs. Ann Lucas is the director. The boys there will be available for farm work during September and October. It is expected the boys will arrive at Camp Onas on August 22nd.

south through Brittany, other Yank forces slashed eastward beyond Fougères in a drive that might possibly be developed into a push toward Paris.

Spearheads in Brittany heading through the Maunon area in the direction of Lorient were expected to continue forward swiftly, the headquarters spokesman said, since the territory is in a zone highly developed by the French forces of the interior.

FLEETWINGS SPARROWS SOFT-BALL TEAM

The British in Normandy lunged forward southwest of Caen to smash the Germans from at least three strategic towns. They recaptured Esquay and Evrecy and occupied Ondfontaine.

The Germans dropped back all along the front between Villers-Bocage and Caen, but headquarters said that the enemy was withdrawing in orderly fashion and the retreat could not be called disorganized.

The enemy withdrawal was being carried out behind well laid mine fields and the Germans covered the retreat by strong, almost incessant counter-attacks to stem Allied spearheads.

The Germans still developed no organized resistance in Normandy and the headquarters spokesman said there was no evidence that there was any organized line below the Avranches-Mortain line, where the Nazis simply stand and fight where ever the opportunity offers and then resume their retreat.

Previous front reports concerning the American stampede told how the Nazis often turned and fought when they were unable to outdistance the Yanks hurtling forward.

The armored spearheads in Brittany fanned out to reach points in the neighborhoods of Loudeac, Maron, Derval and Chateaubriant, an official communique from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters said.

An Allied announcement from Italy said an Allied expeditionary assault force successfully attacked German concentrations on the island of Korcula off the Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia.

On the Eastern Front Red Army troops swept up more than 500 occupied localities. Behind the Germans' shattered Vistula River defense line the Soviet war machine roared to within less than 40 miles of the great Polish city of Krakow. Soviet forces threatened East Prussia and shoved an armored spearhead to within 75 miles of German Silesia.

In the drive on Krakow, major defense bastion guarding German Silesia, the Red army seized Nowy Korczyn and Goryslawice, less than 40 miles from the Nazi-held city.

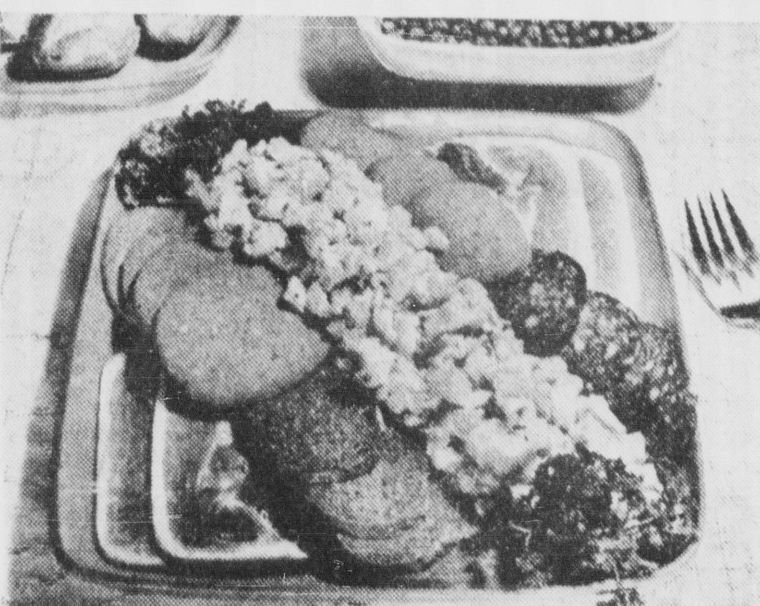

On the 50-mile front facing the East Prussian frontier, Gen. Ivan D. Chernyakhovsky's army group fought its way into more than 300 places, including the town of Krasnopol. Krasnopol is located in the Suwalki triangle—the strip of Polish territory that was incorporated into East Prussia by the Germans after the Polish campaign in September 1939.

South African troops of the Allied Eighth Army in Italy blasted their way into the outskirts of the hotly contested city of Florence today after the Nazis withdrew across the Arno. The Germans destroyed five of the six bridges spanning the river. They blocked the one remaining route with heavy demolitions.

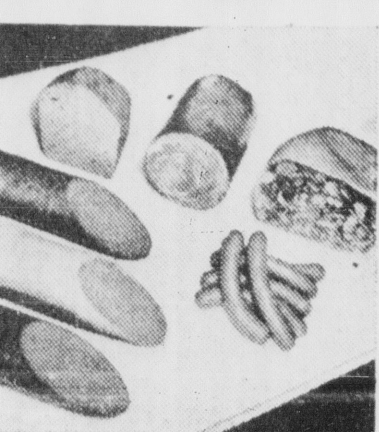

The situation appeared the same as that before Pisa where the Americans of the Fifth Army stand poised across the river barring entry into that city.

COLD MEATS IDEAL FOR PORCH PICNICS

Phila. Transportation Again at Standstill

The few trolleys and subway-elevated trains which serviced the city yesterday had all returned to their depots a short time after midnight. An army spokesman, who said that special patrol trains are running over the subway elevated routes intermittently "so that it will be in readiness for operation at the peak hours" declined to amplify his statement further.

Meanwhile, there was no change in the attitude of the strikers, who walked out Tuesday in protest against the company's hiring and upgrading of eight negroes to probationary conductors and motormen, in compliance with a government directive.

Some of the idle workers reportedly openly threatened a handful of workers who managed to provide yesterday's "very limited" service. James H. McMenamin, chairman of the strikers' general committee, reiterated "the unanimous decision of the general strike committee to stay in the status quo" despite his three hour conference with military officials.

He promised the men and women at the 10th and Luzerne streets car barn, the hotbed of strike activity, that he would have "more good news" for them later today.

The army gave no indication of using troops, reportedly stationed ready for action—on the outskirts of the city.

Military officials also denied that 1500 state guardsmen, who have been ordered to mobilize at two central city armories today, would be used to break down the strike.

Army officials said the guardsmen were assembling for "maneuvers."

They also refused to confirm reports that state policemen, who have been alerted for the past four days, were gathering at their Philadelphia barracks in Fairmount Park.

The riot-ridden negro sections passed their first "quiet" night since the work stoppage began. Only two or three cases of brick throwing were reported, a few negroes were taken to police headquarters for carrying weapons, and six others allegedly fired shots in southwest Philadelphia.

The arrest of the strike leaders became a possibility as U. S. Attorney General Francis Biddle ordered his special assistant, Harry A. Schweinhaut, to conduct an investigation of the transportation breakdown. Biddle said he was especially interested in uncovering violations of the Federal anti-strike laws.

The company itself, which has remained silent since the outbreak of the disturbance, issued its first statement late yesterday. "At the meeting of the PTC (executive) committee this morning," the statement said, "the seizure of the system by the Army under executive order of the President of the United States was reported the entire operation is now under Army authority. The company's policy is one of full cooperation with the army."

Strike leaders, well aware of the year in prison plus $5000 fine penalty provided by the Smith-Connally act for inciting a strike against government-operated facilities, adopted a new technique.

No longer urging the men to go on with the strike, they told the workers: "You have minds of your own—your committee will stick to its guns."

The President of the United States, especially when he is fortunate enough to have public opinion behind him, can wield the greatest total power of any single public official in the world. His authority has been more than ample for all proper purposes.

But large as it is, and because it is so large, it is limited; it is restricted by the Constitutional checks and balances, the most important of which are lodged in Congress.

Of all the vital functions of the Congress of the United States, perhaps none is more important than its Constitutional duty of preventing the American chief executive from trespassing beyond the deliberations laid down by the Constitution.

row bus line, a suburban outfit, failed. Upper Darby officials, however, joined Philadelphia county authorities in closing all bars and taprooms.

Douglas L. MacMahon, international secretary-treasurer of the Transport Workers Union, CIO, which has a contract with PTC, asserted that the "vast majority of the operating employees are eager to resume service," but are deterred by fear of bodily harm. Only a handful of men returned to work yesterday after police offered to ride on each car, train and bus that left the depots.

ACT 3

Provide an Income for a Reasonable Period

"YOUR THOUGHTFULNESS OF OTHERS LIVES ON"

With your last expenses cared for and the readjustment period covered, you should provide an income for an extended period to supplement whatever other income, such as Social Security, the family may expect to receive.

Otherwise, the mother must work (thereby probably forfeiting her Social Security benefits), and the children must be withdrawn from school and put to work at an early age.

Social Security benefits, even if available, will not support your family as well as you do.

A monthly income will enable your family to enjoy a greater measure of comfortable living than will otherwise be the case. Plan now to make this sure.

U. S. FORCES DRIVE INTO ST. MALO; BATTLE GERMANS FOR POSSESSION OF CITY AS OTHER SPEARHEADS DASH WEST

General Situation in France "Very, Very Satisfactory"—Nazis Smashed Back on Battlefronts — British Again Move Forward in Caen Area

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 5—(INS)—Armored assault forces of the United States First Army drove into the Breton port of St. Malo today where they battled the Germans for possession of the city, while Yank spearheads dashed westward through Brittany to within 75 miles west of Brest and southward to within 38 miles of the ports of St. Nazaire and Lorient.

A spokesman at headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced the penetration of St. Malo but said that the port was not yet in American hands.

The general situation in France, where the Nazis were smashed back on all battlefronts and the British again moved forward in the Caen area of Normandy, was termed "very, very satisfactory."

While the Americans pressed multi-pronged assaults west and south, the British moved forward in the Caen area of Normandy, was termed "very, very satisfactory."

BEST FIGHTING MAN

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery warned before the invasion of Europe that the Germans would be hard to dislodge. Put Nazi soldiers in a territory and let them remain long enough and it "takes a bit of doing to get them off," were his words.

The Germans had been in France four years, certainly long enough to qualify for the toughest of the British commander credited them with. Yet American soldiers, mostly classified as green troops, ousted them from a sizeable chunk of territory in less than two months' time.

So-called green divisions burst through some of the strongest fortifications on the beachhead. It was the first time they had hit anything remotely resembling the German fortifications, but the doughboys went through. These gains were made, it must be remembered, against troops which served in France, Poland, Italy and Russia. Even American commanders, who had profound faith in the fighting ability of their troops, were impressed by their accomplishments.

Results being obtained in France prove the basic training of American soldiers is sound. Months of training no longer are thought of as unnecessary days of grind and trouble. Drills, rehearsals, maneuvers, marches—once thought to be the whims of hard-boiled officers—are paying dividends in France and elsewhere.

There is general agreement that the American soldier, odds being equal, is the best fighting man the world has ever known.

RED VENGEANCE

The threat to the center of the German line at Warsaw has revived discussion of the possibilities of Russian vengeance in hastening the collapse of the German people.

The Reds have already served notice that they will bring the military commanders responsible for atrocities on the Russian people to trial at the scene of their depravity. The Russian advance and the German fear of the Russians undoubtedly has played a part in events inside Germany.

The theory is that when the German people face a prospect of Red vengeance, they will pay any price to save their skins. It is a respected theory. It may become the dominating element in the final phase of the war on Germany. If the extermination of the Prussian junkers is desired as a guaranty of peace, the Red army may have a job, despite Stalin's declaration that he does not wish to wipe Germany out entirely.

The British have the motive, the French have the motive but not the power, the Americans have a little motive but much power to lay the lash on a beaten Germany. Only Russia has all the elements necessary to an effective invasion in kind.

Apparently there are no disagreements between Allies and neutral countries which a few more victories in France can not settle.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

standing statesman, these things attest to the fact that Senator Truman is a rather lightweight politician who has always followed his local party bosses, stuck close by the Administration and never found himself in conflict with the White House wishes. If he had not been that kind of a man in Missouri Tom Pendergast, the criminally indicted and convicted Kansas City boss, would never have been his Senator and if he had not been that kind of a Senator he would not have been chairman of the Truman Committee and certainly Mr. Roosevelt would not have made him his running mate.

CONCERNING Mr. Truman personally, it can be said that he is a man of impeccable character whose consciousness of his own limitations made him genuinely reluctant to become a candidate for the Vice-Presidential nomination and who did so only when the orders came to him from the politicians he recognizes as bosses. The news magazine, Time, described him as almost in a panic when he realized he was going to be named. With tears in his eyes, it said, he protested his unfitness for the Presidential office to which he easily may succeed should Mr. Roosevelt be re-elected. As to his background, the record shows that after his little haberdashery business went broke, Pendergast gave him his first small political job; that later, Pendergast jockeyed him for the Senate; that after Pendergast had been exposed as a criminal corruptionist Mr. Truman made an impassioned defense of him in the Senate.

AN ATTEMPT is now being made to wipe all this out by superlative praise of the Truman Committee, which, it is claimed, saved vast sums of money and performed great war services. No impartial review sustains this contention, though it is the only one which gave the Truman nomination the least degree of reasonableness. The truth is that, while the committee made some serviceable criticisms of the war management, offered some sound suggestions and did some good work, the criticisms had all been made before and the suggestions were of things, such as the single-headed production board, which had become inevitable. The significant thing is that only indirectly did the committee ever attack the slightest blame to the President, who was obviously the man responsible. It never directly declared that he personally had erred in any direction on any occasion. On the contrary, Mr. Truman, personally, went so far out of his way to enlorge the Roosevelt management as to bring a protest from the minority members. The basic fact is that the Truman Committee from the start always had White House support and nothing it ever said or did was really unacceptable to Mr. Roosevelt.

that the Senator put—and has kept—Mrs. Truman on the public pay roll. Always when such things are disclosed the claim is that the payroll relative is so efficient as to be indispensable. Perhaps that is true of Mrs. Truman. Nevertheless, the fact remains that first-grade Senators do not do that kind of thing. In former times there used to be sure and deep public resentment toward this form of nepotism. But the way in which the Roosevelt family, for twelve years past, has capitalized its White House occupancy appears to have blunted popular sensitiveness on this subject. However, to many, it still seems an exhibition of bad taste and a proof of low standards. Adding it to the other Truman impediments makes it easy to understand why the Truman build-up is meeting with so little success—why the effort to picture, as equal to the greatest administrative job in the world, a man whose chief administrative experience was in conducting an unsuccessful haberdashery—is not going well.

DISCONCERTING

PORTLAND, Ore. (INS)—A mild-mannered corporal who cuffs army officers around and makes them like it took time off in Portland to demonstrate the war-time art of mayhem and quick death. The corporal, James F. Twoby, Jr., is an instructor in judo stationed in Alaska. But he learned his methods as a policeman in the international settlement at Shanghai before America's entry into the war. Demonstrating his art, Twoby gently wrapped his right arm around a reporter's neck, with his wrist bones squeezing right below the Adam's Apple. That shuts off the wind. The reporter didn't yelp because he couldn't.

HEISLER'S STEAL OF HOME WINS GAME FOR FLEETWINGS

Airplane Builders Defeat Rohm & Haas By One Run

FINAL SCORE IS 9 TO 8

Steal Was Made in Seventh With Two Out; Scored One

"Lonny" Heisler's clean steal of home in the seventh inning gave the Fleetwings team a 9-8 triumph over Rohm and Haas last evening on the Bristol high school field.

Heisler's steal came with two out and after Dugan had batted in the being run with a hit. The hit scored Lodge and advanced Heisler to third.

Prior to the last half of the inning, the chemical mixers had gone ahead by scoring a pair of tallies on a triple by Tony Piazza. Piazza's three-bagger came with Elmer and Nociti on base. Mitchell, who had two hits to his credit, left Piazza stranded on third.

Cy Bachman did the hurling for the A-rows while Paul Cervellero and Joe Antonelli did the bill work for the chemical mixers. The Maple Beach team had a big inning in the third when six runs scored the plate on a walk, two singles, a fielder's choice, an error, and a three-bagger from the bat of Joe Elmer.

Bachman also led his team in batting with a double and a pair of singles in three trips to the plate. Jack Mitchell and Barney Ludwig both had two out of four.

The two teams will meet again on the high school field Monday evening.

Rain of This Week Aided The Tomatoes

for what is known as dry rot, a fungus disease brought about by continued hot and dry weather.

The rain of this week helped conditions considerably however.

Under normal conditions, said Mr. Greenawalt, the harvest of can house tomatoes would be in full swing next week. He, however, has hopes for tomatoes maturing later in the season. Some of the later varieties of tomatoes are developing their second and third sets of blossoms.

Bucks county's tomato production per acre is about seven tons, and as yet it is impossible to determine the extent for the yield for this season.

The tomato acreage in the county last year was about 4,000, and this year it is about the same, perhaps slightly less. Among the more extensive growers in the county are Herman Heston, Newtown township, who has about 50 acres planted with tomatoes; Olin Mastin, Quakertown, who also has about 50 acres, and the Vasey brothers, of near Carversville, who during the spring set out about 45 acres of plants.

The heaviest concentration for tomato growing in the county is in Lower Makefield township, which produces about one-sixth the county's supply of can house tomatoes.

Concerning the help required for tomato picking, Mr. Greenawalt said the truckers are in fairly good shape because there has been a greater migration of transient labor.

The boys' work camp at George School, where Stephenson Fletcher is the camp director, has 195 boys available for general farm work. The boys will be available for farm work until September 2. It is expected another camp will be established at Camp Onas, where Mrs. Ann Lucas is the director. The boys there will be available for farm work during September and October. It is expected the boys will arrive at Camp Onas on August 22nd.

U. S. Forces Drive Into St. Malo

South through Brittany, other Yank forces slashed eastward beyond Fougères in a drive that might possibly be developed into a push toward Paris.

Spearheads in Brittany heading through the Maun area in the direction of Lorient were expected to continue forward swiftly, the headquarters spokesman said, since the territory is in a zone highly developed by the French forces of the interior.

Alexander (director of athletics), Julia Lucas, Dot Chewing, Rose Marrazzo, Jennie Czepl, Chapman, Alfred Iannucci (assistant coach). Members of the all-star team are Mida Bracey and Rose Marrazzo. Two all-star players not included in the picture are Eleanor Hughes and "Betty" Sallustio. The four will play against the SPARS, of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, next Tuesday evening, on the Bristol high school field.

The British in Normandy lunged forward southwest of Caen to smash the Germans from at least three strategic towns. They recaptured Esquay and Evreux and occupied Ondetfontaine.

The Germans dropped back all along the front between Villers-Bocage and Caen, but headquarters said that the enemy was withdrawing in orderly fashion and the retreat could not be called disorganized.

The enemy withdrawal was being carried out behind well laid mine fields and the Germans covered the retreat by strong, almost incessant counter-attacks to stem Allied spearheads.

The Germans still developed no organized resistance in Normandy and the headquarters spokesman said there was no evidence that there was any organized line below the Avranches-Mortain line. The Nazis simply stand and fight wherever the opportunity offers and then resume their retreat.

Previous front reports concerning the American stampede told how the Nazis often turned and fought when they were unable to outdistance the Yanks hurtling forward.

The armored spearheads in Brittany fanned out to reach points in the neighborhoods of Loudeac, Maron, Derval and Chateaubriant, an official communiqué from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters said.

An Allied announcement from Italy said an Allied expeditionary assault force successfully attacked German concentrations on the island of Koronla off the Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia.

On the Eastern Front Red Army troops swept up more than 500 occupied localities. Behind the Germans' shattered Vistula River defense line the Soviet war machine roared to within less than 40 miles of the great Polish city of Krakow. Soviet forces threatened East Prussia and shoved an armored spearhead to within 75 miles of German Silesia.

In the drive on Krasow, major defense bastion guarding German Silesia, the Red army seized Nowy Korczyn and Goryslawice, less than 40 miles from the Nazi-held city.

On the 80-mile front facing the East Prussian frontier, Gen. Ivan D. Chernyakhovsky's army group fought its way into more than 300 places, including the town of Krasnopol. Krasnopol is located in the Suwalki triangle—the strip of Polish territory that was incorporated into East Prussia by the Germans after the Polish campaign in September 1939.

South African troops of the Allied Eighth Army in Italy blasted their way into the outskirts of the hotly contested city of Florence today after the Nazis withdrew across the Arno. The Germans destroyed five of the six bridges spanning the river. They blocked the one remaining route with heavy demolitions.

The situation appeared the same as that before Pisa where the Americans of the Fifth Army stand poised across the river barring entry into that city.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, Italy (INS)—"A vehicle is a vehicle whether it's a baby buggy or a Packard automobile," said Pre. Felix Purzyk, of Camden, New Jersey, as he recently pushed his baby buggy into Fondi, Italy, loaded with his mortar and ammunition. The Germans had been in rapid retreat for several days and Purzyk was getting tired lugging the heavy mortar and ammunition over the mountains and along the highway. So when his company took the little hillside town of Itri the Camden soldier became the possessor of a four-wheeled car, built primarily for "bumblers." But in times of war ordinary peacetime articles must be turned over to the war effort.

The few trolleys and subway-elevated trains which serviced the city yesterday had all returned to their depots a short time after midnight. An army spokesman, who said that special patrol trains are running over the subway elevated routes intermittently "so that it will be in readiness for operation at the peak hours" declined to amplify his statement further.

Meanwhile, there was no change in the attitude of the strikers, who walked out Tuesday in protest against the company's hiring and upgrading of eight negroes to probationary conductors and motormen, in compliance with a government directive.

Some of the idle workers reportedly openly threatened a handful of workers who managed to provide yesterday's "very limited" service. James H. McMenamin, chairman of the strikers' general committee, reiterated "the unanimous decision of the general strike committee to stay in the status quo" despite his three hour conference with military officials.

He promised the men and women at the 10th and Luzerne streets car barn, the hotbed of strike activity, that he would have "more good news" for them later today.

The army gave no indication of using troops, reportedly stationed—ready for action—on the outskirts of the city.

Military officials also denied that 1500 state guardsmen, who have been ordered to mobilize at two central city armories today, would be used to break down the strike. Army officials said the guardsmen were assembling for "maneuvers."

They also refused to confirm reports that state policemen, who have been alerted for the past four days, were gathering at their Philadelphia barracks in Fairmount Park.

The riot-ridden negro sections passed their first "quiet" night since the work stoppage began. Only two or three cases of brick throwing were reported, a few negroes were taken to police headquarters for carrying weapons, and six others allegedly fired shots in southwest Philadelphia.

The arrest of the strike leaders became a possibility as U. S. Attorney General Francis Biddle ordered his special assistant, Harry A. Schweinhaut, to conduct an investigation of the transportation breakdown. Biddle said he was especially interested in uncovering violations of the Federal anti-strike laws.

The company itself, which has remained silent since the outbreak of the disturbance, issued its first statement late yesterday. "At the meeting of the PTC (executive) committee this morning," the statement said, "the seizure of the system by the Army under executive order of the President of the United States was reported the entire operation is now under Army authority. The company's policy is one of full cooperation with the army."

Strike leaders, well aware of the year in prison plus $5000 fine penalty provided by the Smith-Connally act for inciting a strike against government-operated facilities, adopted a new technique. No longer urging the men to go on with the strike, they told the workers, "You have minds of your own—your committee will stick to its guns."

Agitators' efforts to spread the strike to employees of the Red Arrow bus line, a suburban outfit failed. Upper Darby officials, however, joined Philadelphia county authorities in closing all bars and taprooms.

Douglas L. MacMahon, international secretary-treasurer of the Transport Workers Union, CIO, which has a contract with PTC, asserted that the "vast majority of the operating employees are eager to resume service," but are deterred by fear of bodily harm. Only a handful of men returned to work yesterday after police offered to ride on each car, train and bus that left the depots.

ACT 3

Provide an Income for a Reasonable Period

"YOUR THOUGHTFULNESS OF OTHERS LIVES ON"

With your last expenses cared for and the readjustment period covered, you should provide an income for an extended period to supplement whatever other income, such as Social Security, the family may expect to receive.

Otherwise, the mother must work (thereby probably forfeiting her Social Security benefits), and the children must be withdrawn from school and put to work at an early age.

Social Security benefits, even if available, will not support your family as well as you do.

A monthly income will enable your family to enjoy a greater measure of comfortable living than will otherwise be the case. Plan now to make this sure.

S. Dispose of or administer "Territory or other property belonging to the United States."

The President of the United States, especially when he is fortunate enough to have public opinion behind him, can wield the greatest total power of any single public official in the world. His authority has been more than ample for all proper purposes.

But large as it is, and because it is so large, it is limited; it is restricted by the Constitutional checks and balances, the most important of which are lodged in Congress.

Of all the vital functions of the Congress of the United States, perhaps none is more important than its Constitutional duty of preventing the American chief executive from trespassing beyond the deliberations laid down by the Constitution.
